

Teachers To Get CD Training

Students Would Relay Data To Parents

A 15-hour seminar in civil defense adult education for county teachers will begin on Thursday evening at the Meadville Senior High School.

The five-week course is being conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction through a contract with the United States Office of Education to provide a civil defense adult education course in personal and family protection in case of disaster.

Designed as a teacher training seminar, the Civil Defense course will qualify instructors to teach the disaster protection program to high school seniors and adults.

Seniors To Teach Parents

This program of the Department of Public Instruction envisions every high school senior receiving this course in order that their families may benefit by the program.

The course arrangements have been coordinated through the county superintendent of schools, Floyd B. Peters, in conjunction with the local school administrators in Crawford County, Col. Harry J. Mier Jr., coordinator of the CDAE program for the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction, announced that William F. Spurgin, CDAE consultant from the Harrisburg office will conduct the Crawford County seminar.

Topics Listed

Topics to be included in the seminar will be need for civil defense, nature and effects of nuclear warfare, principles of protection, national warning system, national community shelter program, state and local civil defense plans and programs, home shelter construction, community and home shelter living, family planning for disaster, emergence from shelter and the individual's community civil defense responsibilities.

Arthur M. Smallenberger, Crawford County civil defense director is also helping to coordinate the program.

It is 276 printed pages and provides for removing all references to justices of the peace from state statutes.

BUFFET SUPPER — A molded salad, made with one of the new salad gelatins, is a decorative accompaniment to glazed ham and a rice casserole. The salad replaces the cooked vegetable. Bread or rolls and a dessert make the meal complete.

Tasty Suggestions for a Fall Buffet

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Here come fall buffet suppers. Friends are back from vacations, children are in school. It's time for get-togethers. But what to serve?

How about a clove-studded, glazed canned ham that is easy to carve? Then as a change from the usual ham partners—scaloped potatoes or macaroni and cheese—we suggest a rice casserole. To prepare, use cooked firm-grain rice mixed with cream sauce plus lots of diced pimiento and top with grated cheese.

No cooked vegetable is necessary with the ham and rice. Instead, you might like to serve a molded salad made with the new mixed vegetable flavored gelatin. Such a pretty offering! When turned out of its mold, the top is creamy, the bottom a pretty clear color studded with the orange of shredded carrot and the gold of pineapple. If you use a ring mold for the salad, fill the center with salad greens; otherwise, surround with greens.

French bread or hot biscuits will be needed as an accompaniment to the main course. For dessert, what could be better than your best cookies and

TWO-LAYER BUFFET SALAD

2 packages (3 ounces each) mixed vegetable flavored salad gelatin

1/2 teaspoon salt

2 cups boiling water

1 tablespoon lemon juice

1/2 cup commercial sour cream

1/4 cup cold water

1 cup shredded carrots

1 can (8-3/4 ounces) pineapple tidbits

In a mixing bowl, stir together the gelatin, salt, boiling water and lemon juice until gelatin dissolves.

Remove 1/2 cup of the mixture to a small mixing bowl; gently beat in the sour cream and 1/4 cup of the cold water just until blended. Pour into a 1 1/2-quart mold. Chill until set, but not firm.

Into the remaining gelatin mixture, stir the carrots, undrained pineapple and remaining 1/2 cup cold water. Chill until slightly thickened. Spoon over the layer of the gelatin mixture in the mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with salad greens. Makes 8 to 12 servings.

Service Awards Given By UNG at Dinner

Seventy-two employees from United Natural Gas Co.'s central district received awards at a recognition dinner held last night at the Belles Terraces Club in Oil City. All had completed 25 or more years of service with the company.

Also recognized was Earl L. Bromley of Titusville, who has completed 10 years with UNG. He is the only employee in the Titusville distribution office to be listed.

This was the second of a series of three such events scheduled for this week. The first one, for employees of United's Western District, was held Monday at Clark, and the final one will take place tonight at St. Marys where employees of the company's eastern district will be honored.

Total 2,700 Years

At all three dinners, 140 employees having a combined total of 2,700 years of service will receive award pins.

Secretary-treasurer Howard C. Rose acted as master of ceremonies; Earl A. Shadlerline, garage and general machine shop employe, gave the invocation; and Mrs. Martha Hanwalt, an employe of the company's gas measurement department, playing an electronic organ, provided dinner music. She also furnished the accompaniment for group singing which was led by Donald R. Spindler, an employe of the Franklin distribution department.

Following the dinner Mr. Rose introduced Harry B. Wood, company president, who spoke briefly commending the award recipients for their service and loyalty to the company. He stated that the company and the gas industry as a whole has a very bright future because the demand for increased uses of natural gas.

"Natural Gas and You," a color sound film depicting the gas industry, was shown.

Service pins were presented to the employes by Mr. Wood while Mrs. Wood pinned orchids on the ladies. James L. Mills, superintendent of transmission and compressor stations, called the roll and presented each recipient for his award.

At the conclusion of Mr. Wood's presentation of service pins, Mr. Rose called upon John A. Comet, senior vice president, who presented Mr. Wood with his 40-year pin while Mrs. Comet pinned an orchid on Mrs. Wood.

The company awards service pins to employes each time they complete a five-year cycle of service. The pins, designed in the shape of the company emblem, are engraved with numerals to denote the length of an employe's service. To further indicate years of service, the 25 year pin is set with a ruby and the thirty year pin and those following with a diamond.

Employes receiving awards at Tuesday's dinner were:

Forty-five years, Harry A. Goodman and Kenneth L. Rhoads.

Forty years, Merle L. Flockert, Mary E. Garvey, David G. Gourley, Richard C. Kerr, Harry L. Mealy, George W. Stephenson and Harry B. Wood.

Thirty-five years, Harold M. Benner, Charles H. Bromley, Earl R. Davis, Mary E. Moore, Thirty years, Robert L. Abplanalp, John A. Comet, Horace M. Kelley, Donald N. McElree, Harry A. Pifer, Gerald T. Sayers, Edward G. Sullivan, Herbert R. Weaver and James A. Wollaston.

Twenty-five years — Rudolph K. Nunemaker.

Austrian Rediscovered Black Porcelain Secret

By ROSEMARIE ZWERGER

VIENNA (AP) — Franz Kukowetz, a 41-year-old Austrian potter, has discovered the long-lost secret art of making terra nigra, the "black porcelain" of the Romans.

He is the only person who knows how to produce clay vases equal to the glossy jugs manufactured some 2,000 years ago at the foot of Mt. Vesuvius — and just like the Romans, he intends to keep his secret.

Legends have it that the Romans had the terra nigra factory guarded by soldiers to prevent espionage.

Earlier Attempts

The Romans were the first who could produce terra nigra, but they were not the first who tried it. Terra nigra fragments have been excavated from ancient Babylonian and Egyptian ruins, but they did not yet have the most important characteristics of the Roman material — a uniform dark gray on the inside.

Scientists have tried to solve the mystery of the production ever since the first fragments of terra nigra were found during excavations of Pompeii. They found out about the composition of the material and developed many theories on its production, but practical attempts to make terra nigra failed.

Kukowetz first heard of the mysterious material as a boy in a history lesson at school. Against the wish of his father, who wanted him to become a farmer, Kukowetz took up pottery.

"Crazy Potter"

He read all the books on ancient pottery he could find and he made thousands of experiments which failed with regularity. Soon he was known as the "crazy potter" and artists and scientists laughed at him.

From a hitch-hiking tour of all clay pits throughout Austria, he brought back hundreds of samples. He mixed some—and struck the magic formula. After seven more years of experimenting and some 4,000 tests, Kukowetz presented his discovery to a panel of scientists who confirmed that his jugs were identical with the Roman terra nigra.

Employs 20 in Factory

Kukowetz is now producing terra nigra jugs in a small factory in Vienna. He employs about 20 workers — but only he knows the composition of the material. He mixes the raw material behind the locked door of his locked study.

Kukowetz's terra nigra pottery goes mostly to the United States, Scandinavia and France. So far he has turned down all offers to sell his patent.

"I don't know whether I shall ever pass on the secret of terra nigra production," he said. "I have not even told my family."

Girl Scouts Cadette Troop 348

We met in the social hall of the Presbyterian Church Monday evening. We discussed plans for our Emergency Preparedness Challenge and then went into our patrols to elect officers. The Mishief Makers patrol's officers are: Debbie Kennedy, patrol leader; Peggy Snyder, assistant patrol leader; Rita Stec, commissary; Kathy Buser, recorder and finance manager; Linda Hull, transportation and equipment manager; and Sherry Conway, new comer. We closed with the Girl Scout Law song and taps.
